

eSwimming – The Project

eSwimming is a European project funded with support of the Lifelong Learning Programme of the European Commission with the aim of promoting all over Europe swimming as a therapy for disadvantaged people.

To promote swimming and encourage networking a multilingual website has been developed which gives access to different educational and promotional materials specifically designed for the different target groups of the project: trainers, parents, and swimmers.

The eSwimming project is coordinated by IPAK – Institute for Symbolic Analysis and Development of Information Technologies – Slovenia in cooperation with private and public institutions from Germany, Italy, Spain and Scotland.

Swimming is an ideal therapy for many conditions. Various methods have been developed to help disadvantaged people to learn to swim.

A new project has been started, with European funding, to spread the word. Its website has much information about opportunities to take up swimming – and how everyone can help.

We also want to reach out to the many people who could provide this help – people who can themselves swim and who would like to help others take their first steps in the water. You can make a difference – and we're going to show you how.
